

Membership News

New Members

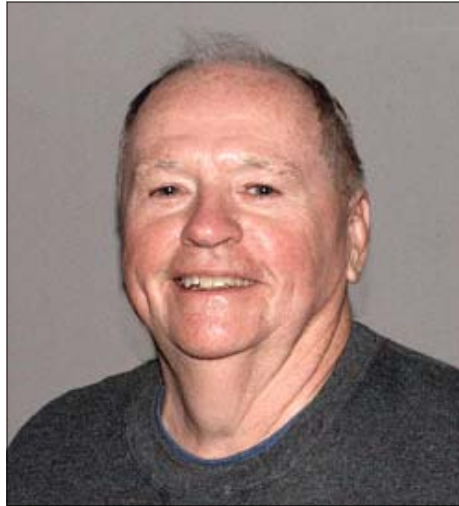

We had 9 new members join our group at the January meeting. Two, Sam Deck and Albert Stadler, were members previously and now have rejoined.

Debbie Neilsen was also among those who joined, but I failed to get her photo. She has been photographing about 5 years and is interested in nature/landscape subjects. She has always been interested in learning more about photography

Naomi Eda is a beginning photographer who wants to learn more about photography, particularly nature subjects.

She also wants to meet and get acquainted with other photographers.

Bob Harris considers himself a beginning photographer and wants to learn more about the craft.

He enjoys making nature and people images and wants to learn from the members.

Tom Lester is a long-time photographer who does mostly landscape images.

He wants to sharpen his skills in flash, composition and processing.

Debbie and Nathan Sauer joined, but since the supply of application forms had run out, we didn't get their photography information.

We will learn more about them later.

Jill Keppler is a beginning photographer who does nature images.

She wants to learn how to use her equipment better and to participate in field trips.

The Greater New Orleans Photographic Society is hosting the Gulf States Camera Club Council's 55th annual convention this year and invites us all to attend and participate. This year's convention will take place April 2-4, in New Orleans' famous French Quarter.

They are planning loads of programs, events and field trips. For more information, go to www.photogumbo2009.com.
